

National Marine Educators Association Annual Conference

Northeastern University
Boston, MA

June 28 - July 2, 2011

related events happening June 27 & July 3

How Can You Participate?

NMEA has several ways that you can be a part of this year's conference:

- ◆ Set up an exhibit table for your company or organization
- ◆ Be a conference sponsor
- ◆ Donate to the silent or live auction

For more information and to register, visit www.massmarineeducators.org/NMEA2011 or www.nmeaweb.org, and click on the conference logo.

What is the NMEA Annual Conference?

This is the biggest yearly event in North America dedicated to the teaching and discovery of oceans, marine life, estuaries and our coasts. Educators, researchers, advocates and enthusiasts gather to learn and to engage colleagues by sharing their experiences, classroom successes, proven programs and newest products. Join us for minds-on, often hands-on, educational sessions and inspirational presentations. Networking during the week creates and strengthens connections that prove invaluable throughout one's career.

What Can You Expect From This Year's NMEA Conference?

- Excellent, informative presentations with tons of take-home ideas
- Three full days of teaching, discovery and sharing
- Optional field trips to ocean and coastal wonders: The Boston Harbor Islands National Park Area, Whale Watch to Stellwagen Bank National Marine Sanctuary, Essex River (estuary/salt marsh) Cruise, New England Aquarium, Historic Boston Harbor Tours, Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, scuba diving and many others.
- Fun evening events including the Boston Beantown Bash, Thompson Island Clambake, Dessert at the New England Aquarium, plus a live auction extravaganza and dance party
- An atmosphere of collegiality, fun, and mutual dedication to improving and expanding marine education

Who Attends NMEA Conferences?

More than 400 educators, advocates, researchers, exhibitors, administrators and enthusiasts from across the U.S. and several countries.

NMEA

Dive into NMEA 2011 in Boston!